

REFLECTIONS OF OUR

DESTINY

"We're a growth company in growth markets in a growth industry. I want you to think growth, growth, growth. That, to me, is the most important element of our future."

DICK BROWN, EDS CHAIRMAN AND CEO

Our leaders feel passionately that electronic business is the destiny of our company—the destiny for which we have spent more than three decades preparing. Only EDS has the unique ability to integrate new electronic business technology into a legacy environment, based on our vast experience—experience no other company can match.

ELECTRONIC BUSINESS MISSION STATEMENT
To help our clients grow by assisting in their transition from an Industrial Enterprise model to an Information Age model.

IMPRINT

FOR THE FUTURE

What comes to mind when you hear the term "electronic business"? Since 1962, when EDS first charted the waters of information technology, we've been doing more than just talking about electronic business. In every area of our company we've been helping clients transform their businesses through the latest digital technologies.

At EDS, "electronic business" means that we use information technology to connect enterprises with customers and suppliers. You'll find that we do it differently—and far better—than most companies. We've spent the past three decades building the characteristics that now define us as a winner in electronic business, and when our clients select us, they in turn gain these strengths for themselves:

- Deep and broad industry insight
- Global delivery
- Multiregional presence
- End-to-end solutions
- The ability to integrate new technology into a legacy environment
